

Cindy Whitmoyer
Professional Certified Coach (PCC)

Cindy is a passionate advocate for leaders taking their personal and business lives to the next level. She has leveraged her 25 years of travel and living abroad to support her interest in international business, leadership training and development, and creating innovative organizations.

Cindy's master-level metaphorical coaching and critical-thinking questions challenge her clients at the highest level. With her strategic thinking and competitive nature, Cindy holds her client's accountable to create the success they are seeking. More than an executive coach, she becomes a strategic partner. Her passion for neuroscience, well-being, and intuitive nature supports leaders, creating a leadership style for being people leaders and differentiators.

As a sought-after executive coach, Cindy is highly requested as a change agent for organizational and leadership development. She is an expert in change management (MOT and ITO) and individual performance assessments (Wiley's DiSC, EQi, 360, Leadership Circle, and Gallup Strengths). Cindy will be attending Harvard School of Business to pursue her MS in Industrial Psychology, and PhD in Neuroscience.

Her broad base of clients come from a wide range of organizations that span across the globe including: Booz Allen Hamilton, Freddie Mac, Leidos, Microsoft, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), U.S. State Department (DOS), U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ), Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), Office of Personnel Management (OPM), Department of Defense (DOD), National Security Agency (NSA), Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA), Customs and Border Protection (CBP), Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), Federal Highway Administration (FHWA), Department of Agriculture (USDA), Walt Disney World, American Public University Systems, Shepherd University, and more.

As the spouse of 23 years of a retired decorated U.S. Marine, a former collegiate athlete, and mom to two teenage sons, Cindy plays to her strengths to balance her career, family, and community service. She serves in numerous volunteer and board roles to positively impact her community. Cindy considers herself a collegiate football enthusiast, hockey fanatic, and loves watching her oldest son play competitive soccer.

With Cindy as your leadership coach, you will have a compassionate thought partner to support you in clarifying your purpose, discovering and utilizing your natural talents, leading up and down, increasing your knowledge of powerful questions, navigating complexity, and expanding your leadership capacity and wellbeing.
